CAMPBELL BOYS BEAT CUYAHOGA FALLS; WOOSTER IS ELIMINATED

Federal Reserves of Cleveland Set Fast Pace.

GOFFS DEFEATED

Mt. Union Stars Down
Monessen, Pa.,
22 to 14.

In a series of sensational encounters that saw at least two upsets recorded and the efforts of the defending champions, the Campbell Merchants, extended to pull through with a two-point victory over a Cuyahoga Falls five, first round contest in the third annual Tri-State basketball tournament came to a close shortly after noon today.

Mullins Quint Loses.
The Merchants, last year's champions, led by Tony Paulsey, just noted out the Los Amigos club of Cuyahoga Falls in one of the outstanding encounters on the morning card, the score being 24 to 22.

The champions, easy victors in their elimination clash last night, found the going more difficult against the Cuyahoga Falls combine.

Among the morning round upsets were included the defeat of the Glister Chevrolests, practically the entire Wooster college team, at the hands of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, and the victory of the Massillon Universal Cleaners over Mullins Body Corporation, of Salem, the latter being Columbiana county champs.

Finals Tonight.
The Lex Sandwich Shops, of Alliance, a collection of Mt. Union college stars, broke in with a win over the Pastime A. C. of Monessen, Pa.

The tournament grind continues this afternoon unabated. Officials hope to have the eliminations completed with the exception of the semifinals and the final by 6 o'clock tonight.

Morning scores:
Shiner Drugs, Canton, 29; Phil Sigma Chi, Greensburg, Pa., 19.

Today

Poor Tired Finance.
Ford's Easy Answer.
Accessible Solitude.
The Spartans Tried It.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.]

Poor Wall street brokers. Another 4,000,000-share day. Harassed financiers even plan a five-day week, "their work is too hard."

How finance would bowl if men working in steel mill, subways, etc., demanded a five-day week.

The senate will ask Henry Ford how he can pay coal miners more than experienced mine owners pay, wages higher than the unions demand. Ford could answer "I have brains and a heart."

Lindberg, seeking rest from everlasting praise and to be let alone, simply flies away. Science confers the blessing of solitude. First the bicycle, next the automobile, now it's the flying machine that has made solitude accessible.

Only recently the Osservatore Romano, mouthpiece of the Vatican, spoke hopefully of an understanding between Mussolini's ruling party and the Pope.

A sudden change puzzles Europe.
Mussolini, in rather plain words, threatens to suppress Catholic organizations for the education of youth, saying the government must control and prepare the minds of future citizens.

The Spartans did that, taking children from their parents. Sparta did not last.

WILLIS' NAME GOES ON BALLOT

COLUMBUS, O., March 31.—
That the death of U. S. Senator
Frank B. Willis has not changed the legal status of the Ohio presidential preference primary, to be held April 24, is the decision announced here today by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

"Inasmuch as all the formalities of Ohio election laws have been observed, affecting the presidential primary, the ballots printed in most of the counties throughout the state, and absent voters' ballots, in many instances, have been cast, it is my opinion that, under Ohio law, the election situation remains entirely unchanged, and the ballots—both preference and delegate—shall carry the name of Senator Willis, the same as if his death had not occurred," declared Secretary Brown.

NO PEACE SEEN AS MINE FIGHT ENDS ONE YEAR

Coal Strike Smashes Duration Records in Industry.

BITTER BATTLE Leaders do Not Look for Break Before Fall.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—The first year of the soft coal strike ended today.

It has smashed all duration records in the industry for a strike of such magnitude.
Instead of lending itself to adjustment, the tie-up which resulted from a fight over wages, has been marked by increasing bitterness. Industrial losses run into millions of dollars;
thousands of men, women and children face actual starvation. But through it all, prices of coal at the mines has fallen steadily as groups of operators compete for the business of a demoralized market.

No need is in sight. In fact, 20,000 additional union miners scattered all over the country are scheduled to quit work with the expiration of temporary wage agreements at midnight tonight. The number is not greater because John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, has instructed his lieutenants to sign up all the miners possible on temporary scales.

Leaders do not look for a break in the strike before fall at the earliest.
Industry has gone through winter without seriously curtailing the surplus of coal above ground, now estimated at about 45,000,000 tons. A diminution of this stock, coupled with fall buying for next winter's fuel, may afford the union an opportunity to negotiate wage agreements with operators who are content to let their mines idle during the summer.

The injured brought here had been

Yale Student, Who Says he is Ex-Governor's Son, Held in New York Hit-Skip Acci- dent.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Arrested after a chase in which a half dozen patrolmen fired a score of shots, James M. Cox, Jr., 24-year-old Yale student who says he is the son of the former governor of Ohio who was killed in the late President Harding's 1920, was arraigned today in Yorkville court and held in $1,000 bail. He was charged with simple assault and leaving the scene of an accident. An additional charge of driving while intoxicated was made.

The chase that ended in young Cox's capture extended from Fifth avenue and 29th street, where his machine had knocked down and slightly injured a passing laborer, to the entrance of the Hotel Biltmore on 44th himself was slightly injured when he fell getting out of the car.

The accident occurred at 6 o'clock trolmen Kolb and Sasse, who were standing in Fifth avenue at 29th street.

Locked in Cell.

occupant, sped up the avenue, they said, striking Peter Lorenzo. The blow was a glancing one but it knocked Lorenzo to the pavement.

Cox failed to stop his car, the patrolmen allege. They gave chase and fired a number of shots, which finally brought the car to a stop. Cox, they said, attempted to escape, but tripped as he jumped from the automobile and fell on the sidewalk, cutting his face.
The police took him back to the scene of the accident where an ambulance surgeon stitched a small cut on Cox's forehead.

Senator Frank B. Willis

Ohio stands with bowed head today, mourning the death of United States Senator Frank B. Willis, the Buckeye state's candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, who was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage at a homecoming celebration in Delaware last night.

East Liverpool, where he had many personal friends, and the state and nation were stunned by the news which was flashed across the country shortly after Senator Willis fell dead in the arms of his secretary in an ante room in Gray's chapel at Ohio Wesleyan university.

His death occurred as the Republican Glee club of Columbus, unaware of the passing of the brilliant member of the upper house of congress, was singing the chorus of "The End of a Perfect Day," a favorite song of the late Mrs. Warren G. Harding, as a preliminary feature of a rally at which the senator was scheduled to speak. The meeting had followed an old-fashioned political parade, in which gas from torches carried by the marchers had made the presidential candidate ill.

And the occasion was suddenly turned from joy to sorrow as tragedy stalked where merriment had ruled.

Thus Ohio's senior senator and champion of law enforcement, whose sincerity was admired even by those who opposed his stand on public issues, died among the comrades of his youth—men and women who were his closest friends.

From manhood Senator Willis, who started his career as a farm boy, had served his state and community in public affairs. A college teacher in his early life, then a lawyer and always a student, he was well equipped for his later work as state legislator, congressman, governor and finally United States senator. And his record, as an educator, barrister and public servant was one of which his native state was proud.

He was a believer in constitutional government, an advocate of prohibition, devoted to the public interest, exemplary in his habits and a self-made man who was honest in his dealings with his fellow citizens.

The nation has lost an able statesman and Ohio grieves at the passing of a son whose memory shall not perish, for he was a true man in every sense of the term.

Basketball Tournament

East Liverpool's name will break into sport pages of cities in Pennsylvania and West Virginia as well as Ohio today and tomorrow by reason of the third annual Tri-State Amateur Basketball tournament which is under way in the high school gymnasium.

Such appetite whetted by interest in the recent Ohio high school competition, in which the Ceramic City scholastics, after fighting their way to victory in the sectional play at Muskingum college, New Concord, went down to defeat at the hands of McKinley high of Canton, hundreds of fans turned out for the first round battles here last night. And indications are the capacity of the Fourth street gymnasium will be taxed tonight when the finals are staged.

And there are many reasons for this keen interest in basketball in East Liverpool, which once boasted of the world's championship quintet, for the Pottery Center of America has been very productive insofar as floor game stars are concerned. The names of Big Bill Powell and his brother, Earl; Bill Keenan, Joe Fogarty, Ferat, Smith, Kincaide and other luminaries, not to mention the Watkins boys, Bloor, Dicky Rigby, Fletcher Chadwick and many others who helped to make East Liverpool a power in the basketball realm, are recalled in reminiscences.

The tri-state tournament, which is sponsored by East Liverpool people who seek to encourage the sport rather than rake in dollars, offers a palatable dish for the basketball lover. For sporting on the high school floor today and tonight will be players who have won many laurels in high school and college gymnasiums, but are wearing the colors of independents in the Ceramic City play.

The two-day sport menu should go a long way toward satisfying the fans and prove a fitting climax to a basketball season which has been a success in more than one way.

Hedjaz at It Again

Abdul Aziz Ibn Saud, sultan of Nejd and self-styled king of the Hedjaz, is again busy harassing the British mandates in Transjordan and in Iraq and Kuwait.

In recent years the king of the Hedjaz has lent only moral support to the desert raiders along the borders of these mandates, but now he has brought much ammunition, plenty of guns and a well trained and mobile force into action.

The observers are of the opinion Great Britain faces another Sudan.

Saud has, since 1901, brought the Wahabi dynasty from exile to a position of dominance in Arabia, and now the intermittent warfare along the northern border of the Arabian desert has become a proposition that will require all of the resources of Tommy Atkins, if he expects to cope with the situation.

At the current writing the British forces in the mandates is entirely too small to cope with a horde of desert fighters filled with the zeal of reformers and a contempt for death comparable only with the fanaticism of the mad hosts of the Sudan. Thus is the British government confronted with a task of no small proportions in compelling obedience of its control by virtue of the mandates awarded by the League of Nations at the close of the World war.

With characteristic swiftness the tribes of the Wahabis are forming under the king of the Hedjaz against the British mandates. Their first objective is said to be "Kuwait, and the Hedjaz are said to have 20,000 desert fighters ready to hurl into the fray. The outcome is certain to be sanguinary, and may force England into open warfare in an effort to force subservience to its mandate.

Despite the weather man, the baseball tickers and scoreboards are ready for action.

Judging from the way some Ohio juries act, there is a new definition of the term "insanity."

It's almost time for the newspaper caption, "Umpire flogged."

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31.—It is a far cry from Germany as the menace to civilization to Germany as the economic salvation of Europe, but such is the change that seems to have taken place, according to the report of Basil Miles, American administrative commissioner at the Paris headquarters of the International Chamber of Commerce. Ten years ago Germany certainly was regarded everywhere save within the territory of the central powers as civilization's greatest menace. Today, Mr. Miles says, Germany is the heart of industrial Europe even more so than she ever was fifteen years ago.

"In the last few years—five at the most—Europe has accomplished marvels," is Mr. Miles' report after a personal survey of present-day conditions in Germany, "but the progress recorded would have been indefinitely, and possibly permanent, retarded had not Germany come to life again as an industrial center of the first magnitude. All conclusions must be based on this primary premise. It is not a matter of argument, but of economic fact supported by a host of incontrovertible data—psychological and material."

Twice a year in the last three years, the reports of the agent general for reparation payments have analyzed the economic development of the country in ever increasing detail. The Germans themselves have furnished the data.

The general picture which can be drawn seems to show a great country in course of rapid recovery, with a tremendous industrial establishment which is being rationalized more and more effectively, says Mr. Miles. The waves of unemployment seem to decrease in height and volume. In fact, a few months ago, it may be said, unemployment although existing was almost subnormal having been reduced in eight months by about 1,500,000.

The full significance of this fact, it is pointed out, can only be presented in connection with another fact, namely, that the number of the working population in the Germany of today is 5,900,000 larger than in the same area before the war.

This is largely due to the fact that there are now about 600,000 young men every year who must be absorbed in industry and agriculture instead of entering the army. German youths are working now instead of soldiering. Other factors, the observer found, have contributed to the increase in the number of workers, especially the results of inflation which witnesses the loss of so many thousands of private fortunes and compelled their owners to enter the ranks of those who now must earn a living wage.

Air transportation is one of the fields in which the Germans have made notable progress. Last September there were 73 commercial air lines in operation, over which the distances flown during the month was about 250,000 miles. Over 14,000 passengers were carried and 45 tons of freight, about 35 tons of mail, and nearly 60 tons of baggage. The service included organized connections with railways, providing for combined journeys by rail and air.

Another instance of German progress is that in the modernization of European travel Germany has apparently been the first to install long distance wireless telephone service in express trains and to have the service functioning successfully.

Mr. Miles adds that while Germany has cleaned house and attained a more healthy condition in industry and trade, the critical period has not passed, nor can a final measure be taken of the modern structure which has been erected so long as certain fundamental uncertainties survive. These uncertainties are largely political, but their effect is primarily economic.

"Therefore," he says, "the word uncertainty describes the principal obstacle in the way of obtaining a clear picture of what modern Germany can do. Those who have observed the courage and ingenuity with which the Germans have restored their country and revived trade and industry to a comparatively sound and healthy condition, feel convinced that the most modern of European countries will thrive, and the rest of the world will profit by this favorable impulse."

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, March 31.—The museum and flea circus on 42d street is in the fourth year of its "run" and threatens to eclipse the record of the Able show. After 11 o'clock it fills with crowds in evening dress from the theatres all about it. It is a "stunt"—like going to Reuben's for a sandwich.

The museum is no different from its predecessor of other days. Even the amusing twisted mirrors that dwarf or elongate the figure line the entrance halls. There are also long test tubes and penny peep shows featuring "The Art of Posing" and "One O'Clock Baby."

The suave tuxedoed announcer with touches of silver at his temple might have stepped from an E. Phillips Oppenheim. The exhibition continues with only an occasional change in the lineup of human freaks. The latest entry is Jean Liberra, the man with two bodies.

He is an Italian and from his stomach protrudes what seems to be a shrunken body like those preserved in clinics in alcoholic jars. All but the claw-like hands are covered, and it is the announcer's contention that Jean started out to be twins.

He further announces that Jean, coming from a normal family, is otherwise normal, married and the father of three healthy children. At which point, the night I was there, a lady in an evening wrap uttered a slight half scream and slumped to the floor. Fainting is not unusual in the museum.

There are also the bearded lady, the armless man who autographs his pictures with his toes, the man who defies electricity, the performing seal and the half man and half girl. The admission is trifling, but if you fall for all the rackets it is expensive enough.

The chief attraction, of course, is the flea circus with its tiny performers, under an enlarging glass, rolling chariot races and such. They are taken out of wool balls for the show and hop back into them after it is over.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

It is unwise to permit yourself to do any kind of work so steadily and regularly that you go to bed completely exhausted.

"Hard work never hurt anybody," is an old saying. In general, I accept it as a statement of fact. But there is a difference between being tired after a day of hard work, on the one hand, and, on the other, to be absolutely prostrated, exhausted in nerve and muscle, and barely able to drag yourself to bed.

It is natural and normal to get tired. I refer now to that state which is speedily forgotten. From the right kind of tiredness there is quick recovery. A good hot meal, a jig piece on the Victrola, and you are ready for the movies, or some other diversion.

Nature made our tissues so elastic and our recuperative powers so great, that we do not stay "flat" very long. We quickly respond to the change which evening brings. The pressure of daily cares off our shoulders, we are good as ever very soon.

But the thing I have in mind today, is not the tiredness which honest labor produces. It is the utter prostration which follows too long application of mind and body to intricate, puzzling, exacting and wearing problems.

Almost always the kind of work I am thinking about, is not manual labor merely. It isn't something that willing hands and active muscles can do. If this were all, there would be no difficulty about it.

But this isn't all. It is the work done in the shadow of grief, anxiety, or real labor. Working in that gloom, there is no use trying to see clearly, or to deal easily with the problem at hand.

When you find yourself "working up hill," you should stop long enough to find out what is wrong with you or your surroundings. One important thing to look into is your state of health.

Too often it happens that some unsuspected physical ailment is responsible for the anxiety of mind. There cannot be clear thinking if the body is diseased.

When utter exhaustion at the end of the day is the rule, it may be due to a combination of troubles. The underlying ailment may poison the system. This poisoning may have mental depression and worry among its evil consequences. All working together sap the strength and vitality.

Get rid of your worries by repairing your broken body. Get rid of your

When you Add Up the Faults. Because you know that you have some good qualities do you forgive yourself for many of the faults you possess?

You feel that you strike a fair average, so you are satisfied. Some things you do, you know are more or less harmful to yourself. Some things are not just right.

You can find an excuse for yourself, but you are not so liberal when it comes to analyzing other people.

If you were as lenient with others as you are with yourself, you would not find much fault with people in general.

People average up about the same so far as favorable or unfavorable natural inclinations are concerned. Most of us have plenty of faults.

But those traits which seem trivial in your own case look pretty bad when you consider the same thing in the other fellow.

However, the other fellow can't see why your offense isn't as bad as his.

Other Editors Say

The Senate Wrong. It will be the general opinion, we think, that the senate has gone wrong in finally killing the plan for a special commission to study into all features of the S. 4 disaster. The house promptly complied with the president's recommendation that provision be made for such a study, while the senate has persistently held out for an investigation by a joint committee of the two houses.

The one thing most in need of careful study in this case is the matter of safety appliances, to prevent such heavy loss of life when submarines are sunk. So far as the general public knows, neither the senate nor the house has even a single member qualified by education or experience to conduct such a study in an intelligent and fruitful manner.

If the recommendation of the president had been promptly accepted, a commission of men qualified by expert knowledge in such matters would long ago have been at work, and the time might have been appreciably nearer when we could feel a well-grounded assurance that such sacrifices of life were no longer to be expected in cases of submarine collision. The senate should have risen above the petty spirit which has been shown in the defeat of the president's recommendation.—Columbus Dispatch.

A Palm Sunday Sermon THE LORD HATH NEED OF THEM

By Rev. F. C. Roberts

Palm Sunday is one of those days which lay hold of the imagination. The ancient ceremonies such as the Palm Procession, the Gospel of the Passion, shows not only a desire to sympathize with the Christ in His sufferings, but to act over again the incident of the Passion. Yet there is a feeling out after a mystery which we cannot grasp, a lesson so hard to learn, but as men whose lot it is to unravel some great crime, will reconstruct the case as the first step to its solution. So the church today reconstructs for us the first Palm Sunday.

Our Blessed Lord had already started from the town of Bethany to ascend the Mount of Olives which hid Jerusalem from His gaze, and as He draws near to the little village called Bethpage, He sends two of His disciples to procure for Him the ass's colt on which He would enter the city. They would find it at the entrance of the village, and if any man was unwilling to let him go, they were to say, "The Lord hath need of them."

What did He mean? Did it mean that the owner being a disciple of which we have no knowledge would understand what was meant by "The Lord" and immediately obey? or was He asking for something in the interest of His Imperial mission that the animals were wanted for the service of God? I myself think that was the meaning. For after all there is something higher than a man's right to his own property. He is only a tenant at will, and God can say this or that "The Lord hath need of them," and man may send, or God will take them. When we repeat the creed, we express our belief not only in the fatherhood of God but in the supreme ownership of all in Heaven and earth, which we are apt to forget. The rich man piles up his riches and fills his barns, and God says, "Thou fool, this is all mine, this night thy soul shall be required of thee." The sparrows of the air and the lilies of the field are objects of God's care. The soldier who came to Jesus on the Cross must bend his knee before Him. He veils His face at the Passion. The earth rocks at the sight of the finished tragedy. No, there is nothing little in this world so long as the great God cares for all, for "The Lord hath need of them."

God has need of you and me. You have a work to do, a place to fill, a duty to discharge which only you or I can do. Jesus is not calling you to throw down your arms and implement and say: Here am I ready to start on a Crusade, while the heavens reecho the cry, "God wills, God wills."

No, it is nothing heroic. He only asks you to remain tied up at the place where two ways meet, waiting until He wants you, and not somebody else, or a bad imitation of somebody else.

Oh, if I could only be myself, I should not be afraid of the Lord's summons. God sends His workmen into the world carefully chosen, and they must not fail beneath His hand for neglect the work He gave them to do.

The angels of death are hastening on towards me saying: "The Lord hath need of thee. Can I go? Life has been too strong for me, I have not been able to bear its weight."

When the great dome was to be placed on the walls of St. Paul's cathedral, London, England, the support cracked beneath the weight and became dangerous. Has your life's work become a damaged personality? If so, why? Because it has been reared on a foundation too weak to carry life's duties. We tell the architect of our faults, but faults are flaws; our life is out of plumb.

Yet God has use for this poor battered life. Don't be as the moth, which buzzes round the flaming lamp of this world's attractions to singe your wings and fall and die.

Don't lie around the arena of life listless spectators of a great contest in which we have no part. When God is calling us, when there are places to be filled, and work to be done, workmen needed, may we all cast away the garment of selfishness and come.

"For the Lord hath need of you."

YOUNG PEOPLE HEED CALL OF DR. BROOMFIELD

Seventeen Accept Christ at Pre-Easter Services.

M. P. CHURCH MEET
Dr. John Huntley, Missionary, to Speak Sunday.

"Except ye become as little children ye can not enter the kingdom of God," quoted Dr. J. C. Broomfield, of Pittsburgh, third-week speaker at the First Methodist Protestant church last evening, following a decision by seventeen young adherents of the co-operating Sunday schools to accept Jesus Christ as the motivating influence in their lives.

The appeal for church membership, caught all present between the ages of nine and sixteen without the fold. "If 500 young folk had been present the result would have been the same," declared Dr. Broomfield.

"I have never known this presentation to fail in results," he said, "I have just concluded procuring 324 decisions in persons whose ages range from nine to fifty years. The stress is on having the unsaved to hear it."

Sunday school classes from all the churches involved in the revival were in attendance and rose in turn when called upon by Rev. George C. Westlake, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue M. E. church, who directed the congregational singing.

Rev. A. H. O'Brien announced a third outside speaker for Sunday's services, he having procured Dr. John Huntley, of Shanghai, China, for the morning and evening at the First Baptist church.

Dr. Huntley is Missionary. Dr. Huntley is in America on a far-flung following 28 years' labor in the Chinese mission field, Rev. Mr. O'Brien declared. "He is living at Granville, Ohio, while in the United States. He will speak at 11 a. m. and again at 6:30 o'clock in the evening. By starting the latter service one hour earlier than usual those attending it can go to one of the two other pre-easter services scheduled at 7:30 o'clock that evening."

Dr. Huntley was a student of Dr. John Spurgeon, London's noted preacher of a few decades ago who qualified as one of the world's most eminent divines.

Dr. Broomfield will remain over on Sunday and will speak twice that day, the first sermon to be at the First M. P. church at 11 a. m. and the second in the First Presbyterian church at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. John Robertson, who is to be the fourth and final speaker next week in the series of meetings, has agreed to begin his work here on Sunday with two discourses. He will speak at 11 a. m. at the First United Presbyterian church and at the First M. E. church in the evening.

Services Next Week. The services next week will consist of two daily at which Dr. Robertson will speak. The first of these will be at the First Presbyterian church and will start promptly at 12:10 and continue until 12:50 o'clock so as to enable business men and women to be back for their labors by 1 o'clock.

In the noon services Dr. Robertson will discuss "Our Lord's Steps to the Cross." In the evenings his theme will be "The Men on the March." Dr. Robertson is a native of Glasgow, Scotland. For three decades he has been a notable evangelist. He is the editor of "The Christian Scotsman."

Rev. L. J. Davidson, pastor of the First U. P. church made the invocation at last evening's service and Dr. Broomfield himself gave the benediction.

Accompanied by Miss Jessie Hall, church organist, Misses Sara Hargraves and Pansy McDonald sang "I Shall See Him."

In an address, unique in its conception and appealing to children and adults in its delivery Dr. Broomfield, utilizing a chart, made plain the steps necessary to become a Christian.

An aeroplane under construction was recently sold at auction at Brooklands Aerodrome, England, to help pay arrears in rent.

Some districts of Panama are having labor shortages.

LAW AND GOSPEL

Sermonette by Dr. J. G. Reinartz

Matthew 5:20-26.

Based on the text, let us in the first place consider the sham-righteousness of the Pharisee. The sect of the Pharisees imagined that they were keeping the ten commandments strictly according to the letter. They did not worship idols. They never took the name of Jehovah into their mouth and therefore were sure that they did not use it in vain. They insisted on strict observance of the Sabbath, doing no work whatsoever on that day. They honored their parents. They did not kill. They did not commit adultery. They did not steal. They did not bear false witness in the courts. In short, they kept the ten commandments as far as the outward work was concerned. They even did more than was commanded in them, fasting twice a week, etc.

There are plenty of such Pharisees even at the present day. Their religion amounts about to this: "Whosoever does right, will be all right. Whosoever is good, will surely get to heaven. But a good man is he who does not steal, or curse, or get drunk, or commit adultery, or perjure himself. Others are honest enough to admit that there may be defects in them here and there. No man, they say, is perfect. But God will not insist on what we are unable to perform. He will not be so hard as to condemn us for some slight shortcomings." All this is nothing but the old sham-righteousness of the Pharisee.

It is either a n or hidden self-righteousness. It is not the righteousness that will stand in God's sight. It is unqualifiedly condemned in the words of the Lord: "Unless your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and the Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter the kingdom of heaven."

The righteousness demanded by the law. In order to convince those men "Christ himself explains the law to them. The law demands that we should be perfect and holy.

"For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all."

"What is a man that he should be clean? And he which is born of a woman that he should be righteous?" "There is no difference; for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God."

"Every imagination of the thoughts of man's heart is only evil continually."

Such passages clearly pronounce God's holy judgment on all such Pharisaic righteousness: "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting."

How hard it is to bring the human heart to this confession: "There is nothing good in me. The whole heart is sick, and the whole heart faint. From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it." But as long as we do not reach this point we fail to come to a true knowledge of the holy law of God.

Whoever would earnestly search his own heart in the light of such words, would break down with the confession of Peter: "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord." He realizes that God cannot recede from His demands, just because He is a Holy God. Even though the debtor is utterly insolvent, the debt remains. Thus the divine requirement is unshaken. Be ye holy and perfect, though man is fallen and helpless in his sin.

But this also shows that the law can never, never be the way to obtain righteousness before God. It is simply a mirror to show us our sinfulness and to teach us to despair of all our own righteousness.

The righteousness of God is His own free gift. Fortunately the word of God does not end with this revelation. Our Gospel and Epistle lessons must always be understood and interpreted out of the full context of the holy scriptures. Therefore we must proceed to speak of that righteousness which is the gift of God in Jesus Christ. When the disciples once asked the Lord: "Who then can be saved?" He said unto them: "With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible."

It is impossible to be saved in the way of the law, through fulfillment of its commandments. But God, in His unspeakable love and mercy has opened up a new way, maintaining the full requirement of His Holy law and yet making our salvation possible. God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself. He sent His only begotten Son, who in our place, as one of us, fulfilled the whole of the law and bore the whole chastisement thereby establishing a perfect righteousness. Thus he obtained eternal redemption for us. God required of Christ all the strictest demands of the law. He inflicted on Him, who bore the sin of the world the whole penalty of the law.

This righteousness of the Godman, Jesus Christ is communicated to us through the means of grace, in Holy Baptism, in the preaching of the Gospel, in the Lord's supper. Whosoever grasps this righteousness in a believing heart, is absolved by God from all his sins. His sins are no longer imputed to him. God looks upon him as one who never committed any sin, as one who had fulfilled all the righteousness of Christ. This is justification of the poor sinner before God, through faith in Jesus Christ, our friend in need and our Saviour indeed. This is the better, the exceeding righteousness which we need, if we mean to enter into the kingdom of God, instead of remaining outside with the Pharisees. This is what we sing in that precious hymn: "My hope is built on nothing less Than Jesus' blood and righteousness; No merit of my own I claim, But wholly lean on Jesus' name. On Christ, the solid Rock, I stand; All other ground is sinking sand."

This alone is the true understanding of the Law and Gospel. Thus the Law becomes our schoolmaster to bring us to the person and the work of Christ.

Stand by, therefore, and cling to the evangelical freedom of the children of the New Testament, who are unwilling to forget the Apostle's injunction: "Wherefore, brethren, we are not children of a handmaid, but of the free woman. With freedom did Christ set us free" stand fast, therefore, and do not entangle again in a yoke of bondage."

"I build on this foundation: That Jesus and His blood Alone are my salvation. The true eternal good, Without Him all that pleases Is valueless on earth; The gifts I owe to Jesus Alone my love are worth."

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

"It is only by trying to understand others that we can get our own hearts understood."

Freedom Business Men Plan Street Paving

State Aid May be Asked in Improvement of Third Avenue, Part of Main Highway.

FREEDOM, Pa., March 31.—At a meeting of the town council, the Freedom Business Men's association and citizens, plans were discussed for the resurfacing of Third avenue. This is the principal business street of the town and on the main highway between Rochester and Pittsburgh. After July 1, it will become a part of the state highway.

One plan offered is for the single tracking of the avenue by the Pittsburgh & Beaver Street Railway company and the asking of state aid in the project.

Contemplated improvements by the Pennsylvania railroad in the Freedom-Rochester district may change the location of the viaduct bridge at the North end of the avenue.

SENATOR WILLIS' DEATH SHOCKS POLITICAL WASHINGTON

31 OF OHIOANS' 51 CANDIDATES MAY AID DAWES

Preference Primary is Scant Three Weeks Away.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The sudden and dramatic death of Senator Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, was a severe shock today to political Washington.

He was one of the central figures in the movement to "stop Hoover," and his death, while in the thick of the fight, threw considerable confusion into the ranks of those who are intent upon keeping the secretary of commerce from getting the Republican presidential nomination at Kansas City next June.

Willis and Hoover were contesting for Ohio's 51 convention delegates and the fighting was just getting warm.

The first reaction of the politicians was that Willis' sudden removal from the scene left the Ohio field clear for Hoover. Examination of the Ohio primary law, however, revealed the inaccuracy of this conclusion, and although the senator's death has enormously complicated the work of "stopping Hoover," the opposition was still unwilling today to concede that they have lost their fight on the Buckeye battleground.

Inspired reports to the effect that Secretary Hoover planned to withdraw from the Ohio primary were authoritatively denied here today. The present situation will remain unchanged so far as Hoover is concerned, it was stated.

Primary on April 24.

There are 51 Willis candidates in the field in Ohio, and under the law all of these are said to be favorable to Dawes, with the rest split among Lowden, Curtis and a few scattered.

If the anti-Hoover sentiment can be kept crystallized and disciplined, the opponents of the cabinet candidate may yet prevent him from getting a majority of the 51 delegates.

It remains to be seen, however, whether the anti-Hoover sentiment can be kept crystallized—scattered as it is among the rest of the field.

Undoubtedly, it was pointed out here today, some of the Willis declared candidates were kept in line because of personal and political attachment to the senator.

Hoover Men Claim 488 Delegates.

Even with Willis alive and personally directing the fight, most politicians were ready to concede the secretary of commerce a part of the Ohio delegation.

In all the tables which the Hoover managers have privately compiled to show that he will have in excess of 400 votes on the first ballot they have figured on about 15 Ohio delegates. In their more optimistic moments they have claimed a majority of the 51, but the practical politicians of Washington have doubted this.

If now, however, there is anything like a concerted movement to the Hoover standard on the part of those who were held to Willis because of personal or political attachment, it was pretty generally conceded today that Hoover is within sight of the nomination.

One table of Hoover's delegate strength, privately compiled and circulated in Washington, claims for him 488 delegates, with only twelve from Ohio included. If this number from Ohio is now increased to 40 or more it brings the cabinet candidate within sight of the nomination, which requires only 545.

CHRYSLER CHASSIS On Display

Have you ever actually been permitted to view with your own eyes a cut-away chassis of an automobile, one that shows every moving part and its relation to every other moving part? Just how the engineers have worked out the assembling of parts to reduce friction, eliminate wear and produce long life. In fact, this chassis has the parts cut away to the extent that you can see and learn more about an automobile in ten minutes than the average person can learn about one in a lifetime, without seeing such a chassis as we are showing during this Special Display Week.

You owe it to yourself to have this knowledge.

We invite you to come in and see this wonderful piece of mechanism with free admission and without obligation.

Text of Speech Senator Frank B. Willis Planned To Deliver at Delaware Homecoming Welcome

STUMPED STATE FOR M'KINLEY

COLUMBUS, O., March 31.—Senator Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, whose life came to an end last night began his political career during the presidential campaign of 1896.

Senator Willis became interested in politics at that time and stumped the state for William McKinley. In 1899 he stepped boldly into the game when he won the nomination of Republican candidate for representative from Hardin county.

In his two terms in the Ohio legislature Senator Willis gained distinction through his connection with the reform tax measures.

Senator Willis' jump from obscurity to national fame in congress came as a result of a speech he made in the house for representatives on the Arizona-New Mexico statehood bill.

LAUDS STATESMAN

Cannot Say Anything About Future Developments.

CLEVELAND, March 31.—Many Cleveland friends of Senator Frank B. Willis, who died suddenly at Delaware, today paid tribute to the Ohio senator after recovering from the shock of his death.

Carmel A. Thompson, who was managing the late senator's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, stunned by the news, left for Delaware immediately.

"I'm too overcome to say anything about future developments at this time," Thompson said, just before leaving Cleveland. "I can't even imagine what will develop, for we have a legal situation that has never confronted the state before. I have notified state headquarters at Columbus to close and place the appropriate emblems on the door."

"You can't imagine what a shock it was to me to learn of Frank Willis' death. He was a fine character and a statesman who was respected by all his colleagues."

Maschke Visibly Affected.

A. E. Bernstein, United States district attorney, said Willis' death was a calamity to the state of Ohio.

"It ought to be a lesson to all of us," Bernstein declared. "His death was simply the result of overwork."

Maurice Maschke, state Republican national committeeman and one of the leaders in the campaign of Herbert Hoover, was visibly affected when told of Willis' death.

"It is a dreadful calamity," Maschke said. "Although Senator Willis and I were on opposite sides in the present primary fight, I am sure that there were no personal animosities on my part or his. He was one of our most conspicuous public servants."

The Central Voters' Republican league and the women's Republican club adopted resolutions deploring the death of Senator Willis.

Appeal Remus Ruling.

LIMA, O., March 31.—An immediate appeal to the supreme court by the prosecutors of George Remus, former "king of the bootleggers," from the district court of appeals ruling yesterday that Remus was sane and should be released within two days, was anticipated today.

TRUCE CALLED IN STATE FIGHT

COLUMBUS, O., March 31.—The feeling of intense sorrow permeated Willis and Hoover state headquarters here today. Chiefs and subordinates alike, voiced their regret to the sudden death of U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis.

Announcement was made at both headquarters that political activities through the state will be suspended until after the funeral and burial of Senator Willis.

Col. Carmel A. Thompson, Cleveland, and former Secretary of State Thad H. Brown, Columbus, managers, respectively, of the Willis and Hoover pre-primary campaigns in Ohio, today declined to discuss political activities or future plans affecting their statewide organizations.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, March 31.—The leading industrial stock were turned over in enormous volume at the beginning of trading today, the rush to buy General Electric, Westinghouse, General Motors and Radio fairly sweeping the floor brokers and traders off their feet. Radio lost about a point at the beginning, but General Electric and Westinghouse jumped 3 points each in heavy trading and General Motors moved up 2 points to 194, standing for a brief period on the same price level as its nearest market rival.

Nothing approaching the spectacular activities in the stock market was promised in the week-end business reviews of the leading mercantile agencies and banking houses. Commercial gains have been less vigorous and widespread than had been anticipated, according to Dun's which also commented on the backwardness of eastern and variable weather. Stiffening of time money rates, with two increases in bankers' acceptance rates during the week and a heavy outward movement of American gold, were generally accepted as unmistakable signs of an approaching tightening of the money market as a whole.

When speculative interest appeared to lag in the high-priced industrial and motor stocks, pool operations were transferred near the end of the first hour to a new group of specialty and public utility stocks. American Steel foundries was whipped around further in this period to above 70 for a 41-point gain. Sinclair Oil and Marine moved up to the highest prices in two years, and Standard Oil of New Jersey was turned over rapidly around 41.

Senator Walsh, (D. of Montana: "I always thought of him as one of the most vigorous men physically in the United States senate. I also thought of him as a very sincere man, a man of ability and high purpose."

Senator Shortridge, (R.) of California: "A strong man and an eminent citizen has been called away so suddenly and tragically that I can hardly express my grief. It means a loss to the country in which he held a high position in the councils of state and nation."

Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, himself a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said: "I am profoundly shocked at this news. The country has lost one of its finest statesmen."

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, also a Republican candidate for president, said: "I sincerely mourn Senator Willis' untimely death. I regarded him as a man, of the highest character. Sober and industrious, he always manifested those traits of character which bespeak the true man."

"I knew him intimately in the house, as governor and as senator and I watched his development from young manhood."

"A college teacher in his earlier life, he remained a student to the last. He was a man of exemplary habits, honest and square in his dealings with his fellow-man. He had real oratorical ability when he chose to display it and was a possessor of an abundant vocabulary. He also had a marvelous speaking voice as well as an inspiring presence. He was a genuine patriot, one who loved his country and was devoted to its loftiest ideals."

Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut: "The news of Senator Willis' death comes as a incredible shock. It is very hard to believe."

"Almost from the beginning of my service in the senate, I served with Senator Willis on the committee of territories and insular affairs of which he was chairman and in which he took a great interest. I was thus thrown with him a great deal and became very fond of him."

"Senator Willis was devoted to the public interest and was one of the most faithful to his duties of any member of the senate. He had a charming and genial personality that made him beloved by all of those who worked with him. Everybody liked him and he will be greatly missed."

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho: "There is nothing I can say now, except that it is a great shock."

PAUL C. HARGER AT RALLY WHEN SENATOR DIES

High School Teacher Among 2,500 In Gray's Chapel.

Presidential Candidate Sat on Rostrum For Hour.

Paul C. Harger, geometry teacher in the East Liverpool high school, was among 2,500 persons who sat in Gray's chapel at Delaware last night when United States Senator Frank B. Willis died suddenly from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Harger, who is spending the Easter vacation with his parents in Delaware, attended the Republican rally at which Senator Willis was scheduled to speak. Gray chapel, where 1900 college students gather for daily services, was jammed with a capacity crowd of 2,500 Republicans.

Senator Willis sat on the rostrum for nearly an hour while various preliminary speakers sounded the keynote of the meeting, according to Harger.

Suddenly, Harger said, the senator left the platform and sought the corridor in the rear of the platform, apparently seeking fresh air.

"I have never felt so ill in all my life," Senator Willis told C. A. Jones, his secretary, who followed him from the auditorium. Jones immediately summoned several men from the rostrum, who carried the statesman in to the executive office of President John K. Hoffman, of Ohio Wesleyan.

Bruce Burgess, prominent alumnus of the college, and strong Willis supporter, who presided, appeared on the platform and informed the audience of the senator's illness, and the adjournment of the rally.

Mrs. Willis Fainted.

Mrs. Willis, who was also on the rostrum with her husband, fainted when Jones called her.

Harger was present when physicians in the audience were summoned to attend the senator.

HAND OF DEATH IS PULLING POLITICAL STRINGS OF SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The hand of death appears to be pulling the political strings of the United States senate this session.

When congress convened last December, there were 47 Democrats, 45 Republicans and one Farmer-Labor, giving the Democrats a bare control. There were two vacancies, due to the barring of Smith of Illinois, and Vane of Pennsylvania.

Then came the death of Senator Jones (D) of New Mexico, and a Republican, Bronson Cutting, was appointed in his place. The line-up shifted to 46 Democrats and 47 Republicans.

A few days ago Senator Ferris (D of Michigan) died. A Republican governor is expected to appoint a Republican successor, which would make the line-up 45 Democrats and 48 Republicans.

The death of Senator Willis (R) of Ohio, and the probability that a Democrat will be appointed his successor will restore the line-up to 46 and 47 Republicans.

Willis Rites Tuesday

Falls Dead in Secretary's Arms.

National guardsmen of Delaware, called by their commandant, stood guard over the body in a little funeral parlor here this morning while the senator's grieving relatives made arrangements for the funeral.

Stunned residents of this city were still dazed today by the suddenness with which the end came. Gray's chapel, where the senator was to have delivered a speech, was crowded with his admiring fellow-citizens. A band, marching at the head of a red light parade in which the senator rode, had played rapturously. A quartette from Columbus rendered vocal selections.

As the quartette began singing "The End of a Perfect Day," Senator Willis arose from the seat of honor, called C. A. Jones, his secretary, the senator said:

"Jones, I've never felt this way before in my life. Something's awfully wrong."

Calling for his wife, the senator then staggered and fell dead in his secretary's arms.

Mrs. Willis Prostrated.

A physician, called from the audience, pronounced death due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Willis, prostrated by the tragedy, said she believed her husband had been made ill by the fumes of the torches in the parade to the chapel. She said that during the singing, he had complained that he did not feel well.

The senator's fellow townsmen marched slowly out of the hall with bowed heads when his death was announced from the platform.

Senator Willis was ill Thursday night, Mrs. Willis said. He had been attended by three doctors yesterday after a restless night, but had said he felt no ill effects of his ailment.

He had been determined not to disappoint the comrades of his young manhood, who had gathered to hear him speak. They were his closest friends.

Born at Lewis Center

Senator Willis was born at Lewis Center, Ohio, December 28, 1857, and had served his state and community in public affairs since he attained manhood.

He took his bachelor's degree at Ohio Northern University at Ada, Ohio and later earned his master's degree at his alma mater. Some years later he was graduated in law from Ohio Wesleyan University, here.

After his law degree had been attained, he became a teacher at Ohio Northern of economics and law. In

PARTY LEADERS PAY TRIBUTE

G. O. P. Chairmen Walker and Davidson Praise Senator.

In the death of United States Senator Frank B. Willis, who died suddenly at Delaware last night, the nation has suffered the loss of an "able statesman" and "a great leader," said Willis E. Davidson and Elmer E. Walker, chairmen of the East Liverpool and Columbiana county Republican central committees, in tributes paid today.

Davidson said:

"Senator Willis was a public servant who practiced the ideals of the brotherhood of man, and in his death the nation has lost an able statesman and Ohio a distinguished son."

Walker's statement was as follows:

"During the past 27 years the Republican organization of Columbiana county has supported the late Hon. Frank B. Willis in his candidacy for positions of honor in the state and nation."

"He was at all times a believer in organized political activities and acted in harmony with that belief. In the present campaign some differences of opinion have existed but I believe that I voice the sentiments of each member of the organization when I say that a great organizer and leader has been taken; that we deeply regret his passing and that we express our heartfelt sympathy to his family and friends."

"The Republican party has lost a great leader and one of its most brilliant statesmen."

Similar views were also expressed in Lisbon by Probate Judge Lodge Riddle who attended Ohio Northern university at Ada, when Senator Willis was an instructor in the school. Senator Willis frequently visited with Judge Riddle.

1906 when he was admitted to the bar, he began a general practice.

In 1911 he was elected to the United States congress, where he served two terms, retiring in 1915, when he was elected governor of the state. After 1917, when his term as the state's chief executive expired, he retired from public life until 1921. In that year he was elected United States senator, in which capacity he has served continuously since that time.

DR. LAWTHER WILL DESCRIBE PASSION PLAY

Presbyterian Pastor
to Tell Story
April 15.

WITNESSED IT
Staged Each Decade by Bavarians at Oberammergau.

The Passion Play, given each decade by natives of Oberammergau, Bavaria, will be described by Dr. J. H. Lawther, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, from his pulpit at the Sunday evening service, April 15.

Dr. Lawther witnessed the play as presented by the players in the small German town in 1910. It was again presented in 1922 being delayed for two years on account of the war. Christian people from all parts of the world visit Germany to witness the impressive portrayal of the last week of Christ on earth and His crucifixion. The natives of Oberammergau, a town of 1,600 persons, have been presenting the Passion Play each 10 years since 1633. The cast is made up of approximately 630 natives, including a choir of 500 voices.

For many years the play was given once each week. However, as the crowds continued to grow it was presented semi-weekly. Of recent years it has been presented four days per week. The first performance is offered early in the spring and it is not until late in the fall the last play is presented. During that time hundreds of persons have witnessed the production for which a $2 charge is made.

The play begins at 8 a. m. and is concluded at 5 p. m. with a one-hour intermission for lunch. The stage is set in the open although a huge shed-like building, with both ends open, is arranged for the spectators. The seating capacity of the shed is approximately 4,000.

There are no industries in the town of Oberammergau, the natives making a livelihood through the sale of carved wood.

Wall Street Shortens Odds On Yankees In 1928 Flag Race

Financiers Are Making 3 to 1 Rating on Champs

Tend to do the Same in National, Moving up Figures on Pirates to 2 to 1; Giants Odds Also Curtailed.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, March 31.—The New York Yankees may be playing class A baseball in the south but in Wall Street it's different. In the odds made public some months ago, they were quoted at 7 to 10 to repeat in the American league. Today, their price has been shortened to 3 to 5 and just what that makes the Buffalo Bisons is something for your multipgraph to mull over. The Bisons won only two games from the Yanks because they played only two games with the Yanks.

However, the tendency in the street seems to be toward shortened prices, the Pittsburgh Pirates having been moved forward to 2 to 1 in the National league. They had been 3 to 1 in the early books. The Giants' odds also have been curtailed to 2 to 1 in the current odds.

If the street has the slightest idea of what it is all about, the major league races will result as follows:

AMERICAN	NATIONAL
New York	Pittsburgh
Philadelphia	New York
Washington	St. Louis
Detroit	Cincinnati
Cleveland	Boston
Chicago	Brooklyn
St. Louis	Philadelphia
Boston

Concur on First Four.

Most of the handicappers will concur in the ranking of the first four in the American league, and agree that the Pirates, Giants and Cardinals should run one-two-three in the National league. It is doubtful that too many of them like the Giants over the Cardinals, yet the street can see the latter as no better than a 2½ to 1 shot. The quotations on both clubs probably have been influenced by Thevenow's failure to recover completely from his broken leg and the fact that the Giants seem to be rallying from the loss of Hornsby.

However, there is nothing in particular by which the fact can be explained that Cincinnati is held at 5 to 1 and Chicago at 6 to 1. The coupling of Boston and Brooklyn at 15 to 1 and the placing of the Phillies last would appear to be logical business, although personally I think the Phils should be a shorter price than 40 to 1.

As for the clubs below the Yanks, the Athletics look natural at 2½ to 1, in spite of rumors about internal discord. So do the Senators and Tigers at 3 to 1 and 5 to 1 respectively. However, it doesn't seem to be good reasoning to quote the White Sox at 15 to 1 as long as the Cleveland Indians are only 10 to 1. The St. Louis Browns at 20 to 1 and the Boston Red Sox at 40 to 1 are correctly aligned.

Oxford Shell Stars Beaten By Cambridge

Winners Finish Ten Lengths in Lead.

LONDON, March 31.—A powerful Cambridge crew today defeated Oxford in the eightieth annual boat race between the two famous universities over the four and one-half mile course between Putney and Mortlake-on-the-Thames.

Cambridge thus won its thirty-ninth victory over its ancient rival. Oxford has had 40 triumphs. One race was a dead heat.

Cambridge won by ten lengths. The issue was never in doubt. At the start the Cambridge eight forged to the front and at the end of the first mile was one and one-half lengths in the lead.

At the second mile Oxford was five and a half lengths in the van.

The next mile was hotly contested, Oxford slowly creeping up on the victors until at the third mile it was only four lengths behind.

Then came a tremendous spurt by the Cambridge crew and a drive to the finish which put ten lengths of water between the rival boats.

The victory of Cambridge was generally expected but the ease with which its eight swept in to victory was rather a surprise. An hour before the start at 2:45 o'clock this morning, the victors had been established as three to one favorites.

Because of overcast skies and the earliness of the race, the event was not witnessed by as large a crowd as usually appears to witness the sons of England's two greatest universities do battle for rowing supremacy. Nevertheless the observation trains which followed the crews along the river were thronged. The Thames was dotted with a myriad of craft of all sizes and types which followed the oarsmen to the finish.

The raggedness of the performance of the defeated crew contrasted sharply with the brilliant oarsmanship of the victors. Over the entire course the Cambridge crew maintained a perfect rhythm, clocked thirty-six strokes to the minute.

The water was smooth over the course but the Cambridge crew during the latter part of the race made the surface choppy.

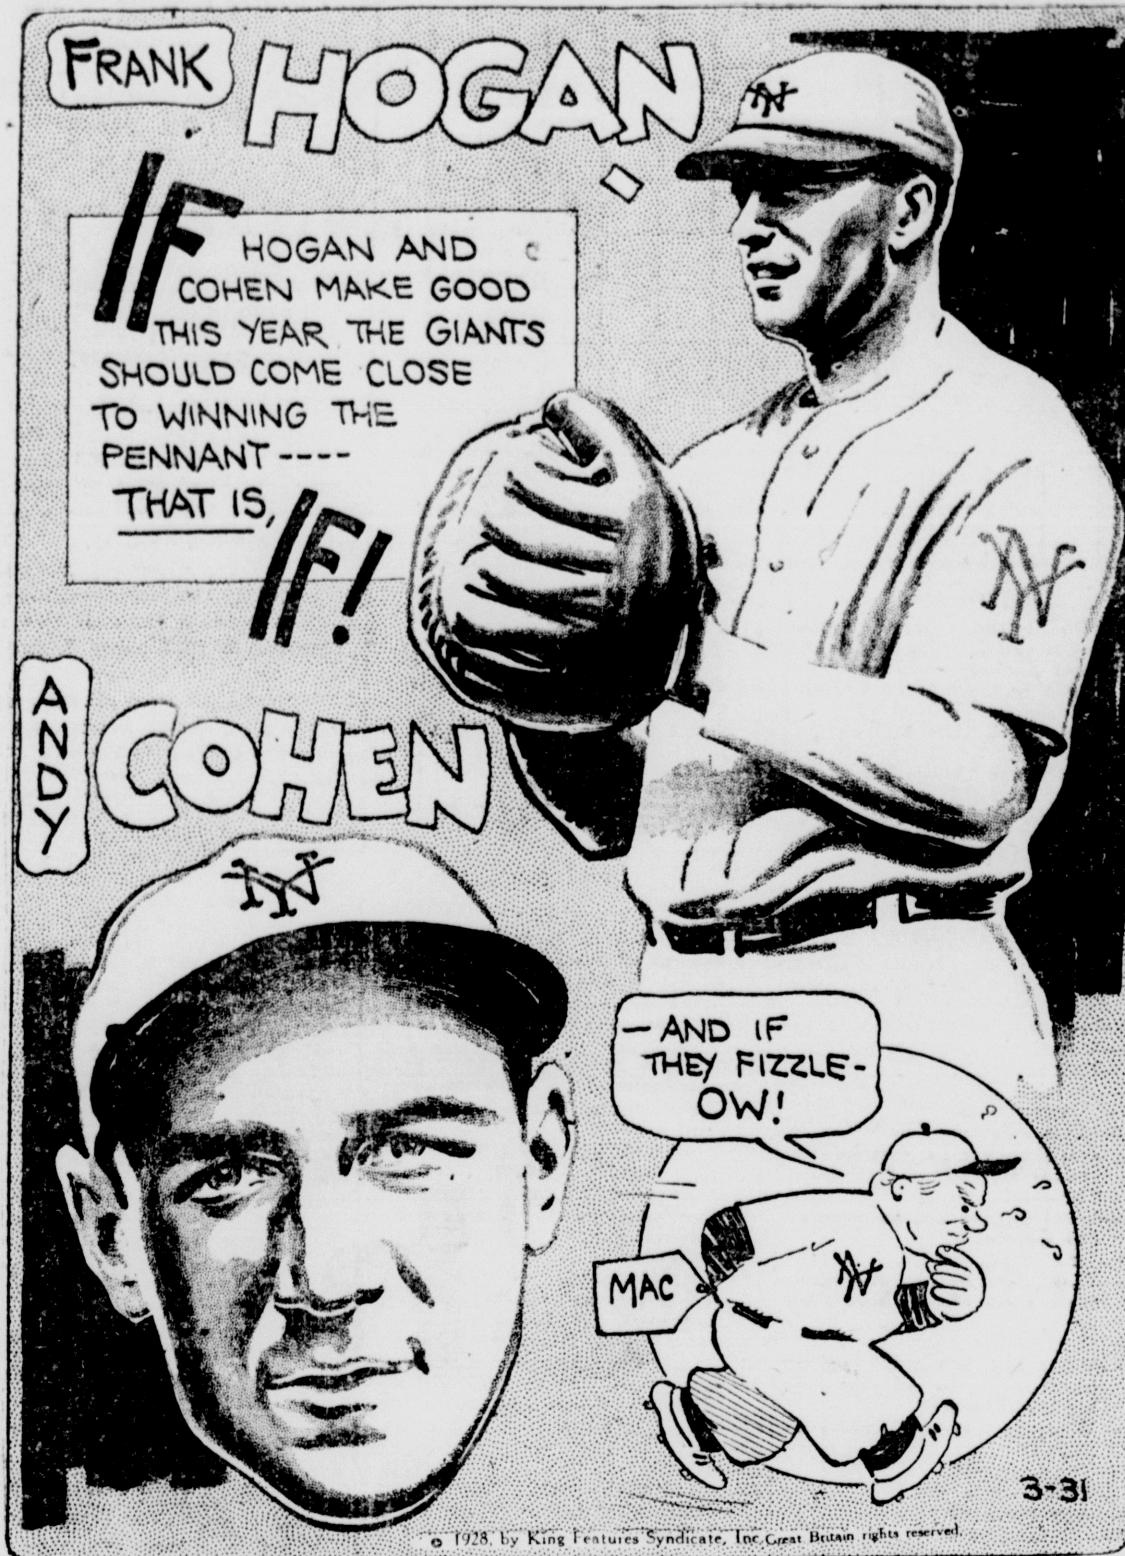

The two boats were obviously expected to be within while the Cambridge crew appeared to be perfectly fresh.

As the two boats glided across the finish line a shaft of sunlight broke through the overhanging clouds, giving an added touch of color to the scene.

Waving banners, smartly gowned women and undergraduates wearing striped university jerseys provided a colorful spectacle.

Among the spectators were the king

The Christians defeated the Lutherans, 47-45, in a Sunday school league clash on Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A. and went into a tie with the Methodist Protestants for second place.

The game was close all the way and rarely was there more than a point or so difference between the two rivals.

The Lutherans led, 8 to 7, at the first quarter and held their one point advantage at the half, 20-19. The Christians, however, were out in front at the end of the third period, 31 to 30, and held their advantage until the close of the contest.

To avoid interference from the tide, the race was rowed earlier than any previous contest.

Turf Briefs

Has Real Trotting Prospect.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 29.—Sep Palin, the popular Grand Circuit reinsman from Indianapolis, has a real two-year-old trotting prospect for the 1928 futurities in training here. She is Cella B., a bay daughter of the former big time star, The Senator, 2:03½, and Linnie Frisco, by San Francisco. She recently trotted to a record of 2:26 and Palin believes she can step in at 2:20 at this early stage of affairs.

Outline Early Events.

MANSFIELD, O., March 29.—Norwalk, Sandusky and Mansfield, members of the Ohio Short Ship circuit of trotting tracks, will give the following early closing events at their meetings this season: $2,000 2:20 pace, $2,000 2:20 trot, $2,000 2:14 pace, $2,000 2:14 trot, $1,000 three-year-old pace and $1,000 three-year-old trot. Norwalk's dates are June 5-8; Sandusky, June 12-15 and Mansfield, June 18-22. Harness Horse Association money winning classification will determine eligibility. Entries close March 15. Mansfield will hold a second meeting July 23-27, when different stakes will be on the program.

Stake Features Filled.

CLEVELAND, March 27.—The five stake features scheduled for the Grand Circuit meeting at the noted North Randall race track here, July 2-7, have filled satisfactorily. The annual fixtures, the $3,000 Ohio 2:08 trot, $3,000 Edwards 2:08 pace, $3,000 Tavern 2:20 trot, $2,000 Fasig three-year-old trot and $1,500 Sportsman three-year-old 2:10 pace drew respective entries of 20, 26, 29, 27 and 27.

The Trotting Horse Club of America tree-for-all trot, sponsored by the club bearing its name, also will be raced.

Valentine's String Grows.

COLUMBUS, O., March 29.—Another addition to the stable of the veteran Grand Circuit reinsman, Charley Valentine, at the state fair grounds here is the pacer, Augusta, owned by the Sanitary Dairy Co., Ashland, O. Augusta was a trotter last year, gaining a record of 2:06¼, but late in the fall was changed to the pace and showed so much speed that it has been decided to keep her at that way of going.

Ex-Umpire Baiter to be Given Some of His Own Medicine Now

For Sherry Magee, Who Use to Cuss the Indicator Man, is Now a Pop Bottle Dodger Himself.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Sherwood Nottingham Magee is an umpire at last!

That would have been a somewhat whimsical line if written fifteen years ago when Sherwood was a leader in two very popular adjunct of baseball: (a) individual hitting, (b) attacking the umpire.

Yet it has taken his friends upward of three years to get him appointed to the National league staff, the reason being that John A. Haydler once was an umpire and Magee once was known as an umpire-baiter. Now, however, he has come to the point where he considers he has been given a break because they are letting him wear the official blue.

Heydler's Objection.

Heydler's specific objection to Magee was that, in other and better days, he scored a clean knockout over Umpire Finneran in full view of the delighted stands. It made no difference to Mr. Heydler that Finneran long since had passed into the obscurity that await the mediocres. A loved one had been attacked and naturally the man guilty was not for his league.

The incident in question was one of the high spots of the rather diverting life that Magee has led. It happened many years ago but I can see him yet as he stepped out of the box, dropped Finneran with a right hander to the jaw. The latter got the rest of the day off and Magee went him thirty better. He wasn't allowed to play again for a month. This happened when Magee still was with the Phillies, his first major league club.

He had quite a time before he departed from that town, one of his escapades including a leap from the window of the old Junction Hotel, diagonally across from the ball park. If memory serves, Magee was carried away with a broken leg on that occasion.

The great tragedy of his life was the trade which sent him to the Boston Braves in 1915. Like many stars of his calibre, he never had appeared in a world series, the Phillies being a chronic second-runner. But 1915 saw them rise under Pat Moran to win the National league pennant for the first and only time. And Magee, who was overjoyed to be traded to the world champions of the year before, quickly soured when he discovered that the Braves were distinctly a one year ball club.

Disappointed Again.

Later, he did get into the synthetic series of 1919 as a member of the Cincinnati Reds but he was past his prime then and, unless I am mistaken, he didn't appear in any of the games. Then he was overtaken by another disappointment.

The Reds let him go before the 1920 season started and he had a chance to stay in the league as a member of the Brooklyn Dodgers. But he refused to accept the terms offered and went to the minors. Whereupon, the Dodgers galloped out and won the pennant.

Magee still has the pep and snap of his salad days but his face is lined and wrinkled from the many suns that have burned down upon many outfields. He came up first away back in 1904.

He has given a very satisfactory performance in his official capacity with the Boston Braves at St. Petersburg. He makes his decisions with an air of assurance that carries conviction and his judgment seems to be all that it should be. It will be interesting to watch Magee in the umpire's blue this year.

Big Train of Hurling Slab Very Sick Man

Johnson in Emergency Hospital at Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Walter Johnson, the "Big Train" of the pitching mound for a score of years, is "a very sick man."

The doctors claim that a few weeks' rest and treatment will bring him around to normal health, but those who saw the big pitcher taken from a train here in a wheeled chair, and removed to emergency hospital, had their doubts today. The "Big Smoke" is sick—there is no doubt of that. The doctors say he is suffering from the after-effects of the flu. The attack which he experienced in Florida this winter, they say, was particularly severe, and the after effects dragged down his general condition to the point where there is real reason for concern.

Most of the handicappers will concur in the ranking of the first four in the American league, and agree that the Pirates, Giants and Cardinals should run one-two-three in the National league. It is doubtful that too many of them like the Giants over the Cardinals; yet the street can see the latter as no better than a 3 to 1 shot. The quotations on both clubs probably have been influenced by Thevenow's failure to recover completely from his broken leg and the fact that the Giants seem to be rallying from the loss of Hornsby.

However, there is nothing in particular by which the fact can be explained that Cincinnati is held at 5 to 1 and Chicago at 6 to 1. The coupling of Boston and Brooklyn at 15 to 1 and the placing of the Phillies last would appear to be logical business, although personally I think the Phillies should be a shorter price than 40 to 1.

As for the clubs below the Yanks, the Athletics look natural at 2 1/2 to 1, in spite of rumors about internal discord. So do the Senators and Tigers at 3 to 1 and 5 to 1 respectively. However, it doesn't seem to be good reasoning to quote the White Sox at 15 to 1 as long as the Cleveland Indians are only 10 to 1. The St. Louis Browns at 20 to 1 and the Boston Red Sox at 40 to 1 are correctly aligned.

Oxford Shell Stars Beaten By Cambridge

Winners Finish Ten Lengths in Lead.

LONDON, March 31.—A powerful Cambridge crew today defeated Oxford in the eightieth annual boat race between the two famous universities over the four and one-half mile course between Putney and Mortlake-on-the-Thames.

Cambridge thus won its thirty-ninth victory over its ancient rival, Oxford has had 40 triumphs. One race was a dead heat.

Cambridge won by ten lengths. The issue was never in doubt. At the start the Cambridge eight forged to the front and at the end of the first mile was one and one-half lengths in the lead.

At the second mile Oxford was five and a half lengths in the van. The next mile was hotly contested, Oxford slowly creeping up on the victors until at the third mile it was only four lengths behind.

Then came a tremendous spurt by the Cambridge crew and a drive to the finish which put ten lengths of water between the rival boats.

The victory of Cambridge was generally expected but the ease with which its eight swept in to victory was rather a surprise. An hour before the start at 9:45 o'clock this morning, the victors had been established, three to one favorites.

Because of overcast skies and the earliness of the race, the event was not witnessed by as large a crowd as usually appears to witness the sons of England's two greatest universities do battle for rowing supremacy.

Nevertheless the observation trains which followed the crews along the river were thronged. The Thames was dotted with a myriad of craft of all sizes and types which followed the oarsmen to the finish.

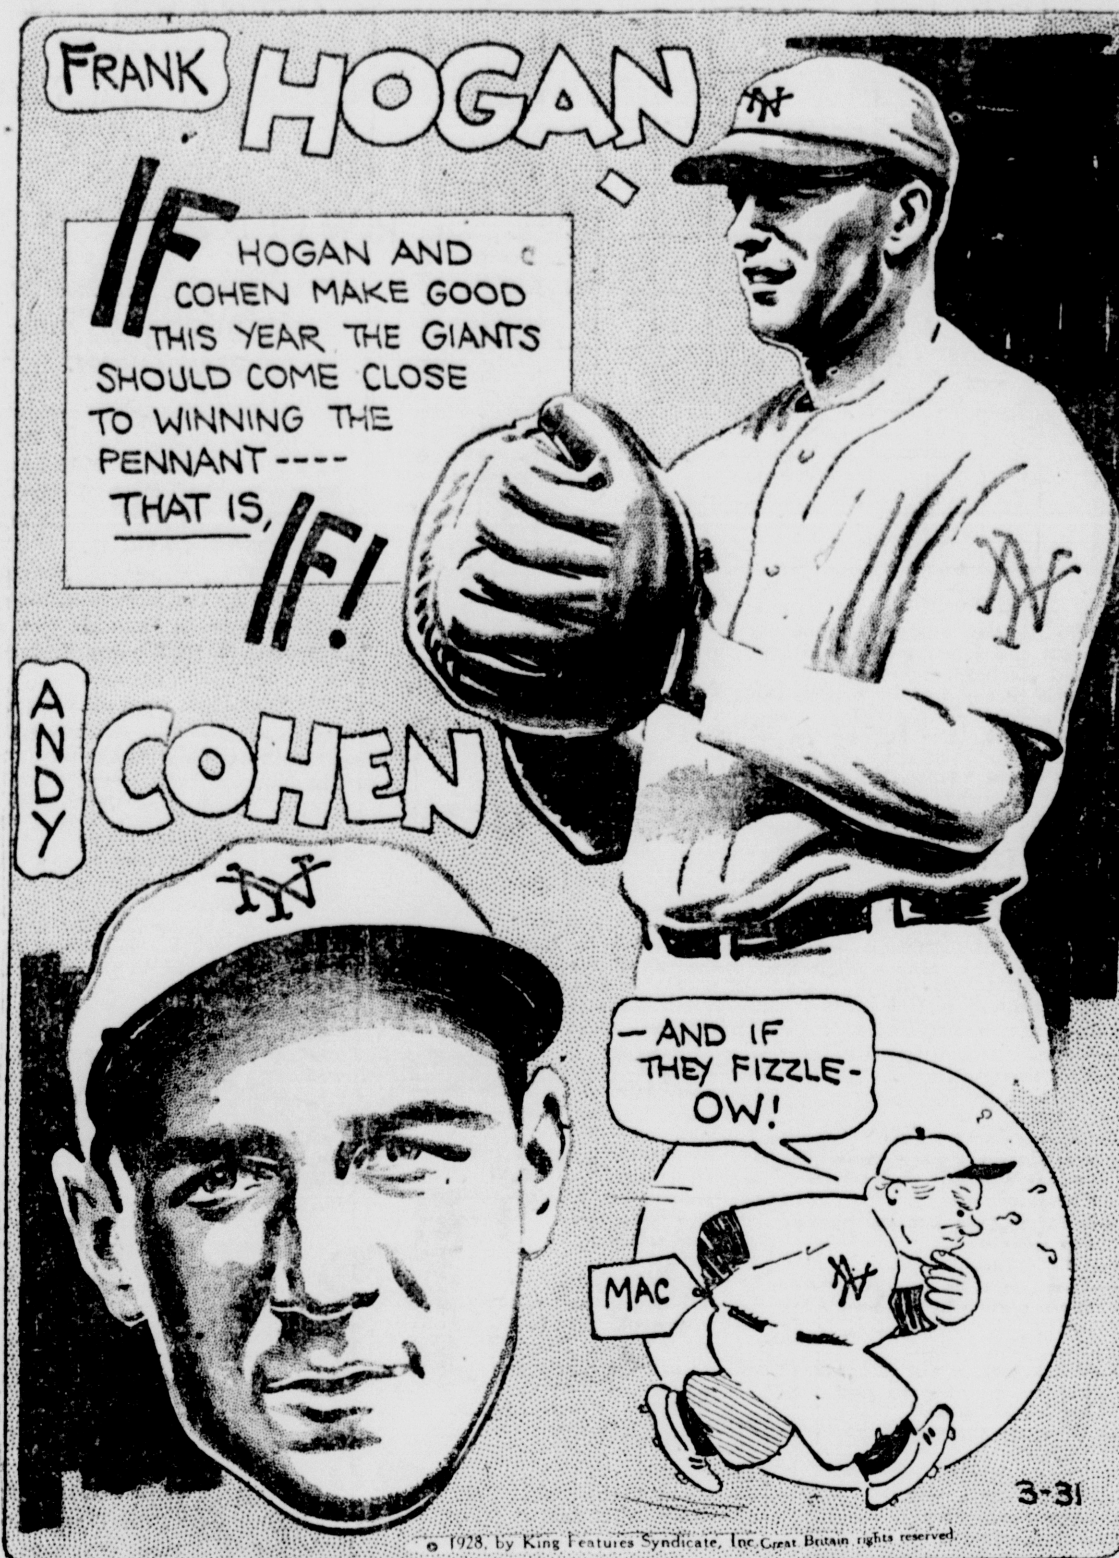

The raggedness of the performance of the defeated crew contrasted sharply with the brilliant oarsmanship of the victors. Over the entire course Cambridge crew maintained a perfect rhythm, a decided thirty-six stroke to the minute.

The water was smooth over the course but a heavy breeze during the latter part of the race made the surface choppy.

The men were obviously exhausted at the finish while the Cambridge crew appeared to be perfectly fresh. As the two boats glided across the finish line a shaft of sunlight broke through the overhanging clouds, giving an added touch of color to the scene.

Waving banners, smartly gowned women and undergraduates wearing striped university jerseys provided a colorful spectacle. Among the spectators were the king

Christians Beat Lutherans to Tie M. P. Five.

The Christians defeated the Lutherans, 47-45, in a Sunday school league clash on Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A. and went into a tie with the Methodist Protestants for second place.

The game was close all the way and rarely was there more than a point or so difference between the two rivals.

The Lutherans led, 8 to 7, at the first quarter and held their one point advantage at the half, 20-19. The Christians, however, were out in front at the end of the third period, 31 to 30, and held their advantage until the close of the contest.

Turf Briefs

Has Real Trotting Prospect. ORLANDO, Fla., March 29.—Sep Palin, the popular Grand Circuit reinsman from Indianapolis, has a real two-year-old trotting prospect for the 1928 futurities in training here. She is Cella B., a bay daughter of the former big time star, The Senator, 2:03 1/2, and Linnie Frisco, by San Francisco. She recently trotted to a record of 2:26 and Palin believes she can step in 2:20 at this early stage of affairs.

Outline Early Events. MANSFIELD, O., March 29.—Norwalk, Sandusky and Mansfield, members of the Ohio Short Ship circuit of trotting tracks, will give the following early closing events at their meetings this season: $2,000 2:20 pace, $2,000 2:20 trot, $2,000 2:14 pace, $2,000 2:14 trot, $1,000 three-year-old pace and $1,000 three-year-old trot. Norwalk's dates are June 5-8; Sandusky, June 12-15 and Mansfield, June 18-22. Harness Horse Association money winning classification will determine eligibility. Entries close March 15. Mansfield will hold a second meeting, July 23-27, when different stakes will be on the program.

Stake Features Filled. CLEVELAND, March 27.—The five stake features scheduled for the Grand Circuit meeting at the noted North Randall race track here, July 2-7, have filled satisfactorily. The annual fixtures, the $3,000 Ohio 2:08 trot, $3,000 Edwards 2:08 pace, $3,000 Tavern 2:20 trot, $2,000 Fasig three-year-old trot and $1,500 Sportsman three-year-old 2:10 pace drew respective entries of 20, 26, 29, 27 and 27.

The Trotting Horse Club of America free-for-all trot, sponsored by the club bearing its name, also will be raced. Valentine's String Grows. COLUMBUS, O., March 29.—Another addition to the stable of the veteran Grand Circuit reinsman, Charley Valentine, at the state fair grounds here is the pacer, Augusta, owned by the Sanitary Dairy Co., Ashland, O. Augusta was a trotter last year, gaining a record of 2:06 1/4, but late in the fall was changed to the pace and showed so much speed that it has been decided to keep her at that way of going.

Ex-Umpire Baiter to be Given Some of His Own Medicine Now

For Sherry Magee, Who Use to Cuss the Indicator Man, is Now a Pop Bottle Dodger Himself.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Sherwood Nottingham Magee is an umpire at last! That would have been a somewhat whimsical line if written fifteen years ago when Sherwood was a leader in two very popular adjunct of baseball: (a) individual hitting, (b) attacking the umpire.

Yet it has taken his friends upward of three years to get him appointed to the National league staff, the reason being that John A. Heydler once was an umpire and Magee once was known as an umpire-baiter. Now, however, he has come to the point where he considers he has been given a break because they are letting him wear the official blue.

Heydler's Objection. Heydler's specific objection to Magee was that, in other and better days, he scored a clean knockout over Umpire Finneran in full view of the delighted stands. It made no difference to Mr. Heydler that Finneran long since had passed into the obscurity that await the mediocre. A loved one had been attacked and naturally the man guilty was not for his league.

The incident in question was one of the high spots of the rather diverting life that Magee has led. It happened many years ago but I can see him yet as he stepped out of the box, dropped Finneran with a right hander to the jaw. The latter got the rest of the day off and Magee went him thirty better. He wasn't allowed to play again for a month. This happened when Magee still was with the Phillies, his first major league club.

He had quite a time before he departed from that town, one of his escapades including a leap from the window of the old Junction Hotel, diagonally across from the ball park. If memory serves, Magee was carried away with a broken leg on that occasion.

The great tragedy of his life was the trade which sent him to the Boston Braves in 1915. Like many stars of his calibre, he never had appeared in a world series, the Phillies being a chronic second-runner. But 1915 saw them rise under Pat Moran to win the National league pennant for the first and only time. And Magee, who was overjoyed to be traded to the world champions of the year before, quickly soured when he discovered that the Braves were distinctly a one year ball club.

Disappointed Again. Later, he did get into the synthetic series of 1919 as a member of the Cincinnati Reds but he was past his prime then and, unless I am mistaken, he didn't appear in any of the games. Then he was overtaken by another disappointment.

The Reds let him go before the 1920 season started and he had a chance to stay in the league as a member of the Brooklyn Dodgers. But he refused to accept the terms offered and went to the minors. Whereupon, the Dodgers galloped out and won the pennant.

Magee still has the pep and snap of his salad days but his face is lined and wrinkled from the many suns that have burned down upon many outfields. He came up first away back in 1904.

He has given a very satisfactory performance in his official capacity with the Boston Braves at St. Petersburg. He makes his decisions with an air of assurance that carries conviction and his judgment seems to be all that it should be. It will be interesting to watch Magee in the umpire's blue this year.

Big Train of Hurling Slab Very Sick Man

Johnson in Emergency Hospital at Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Walter Johnson, the "Big Train" of the pitching mo-and for a score of years, is "a very sick man."

The doctors claim that a few weeks' rest and treatment will bring him around to normal health, but those who saw the big pitcher taken from a train here in a wheeled chair, and removed to an emergency hospital, had their doubts today. The "Big Smoke" is sick—there is no doubt of that. The doctors say he is suffering from the after-effects of the flu. The attack which he experienced in Florida this winter, they say, was particularly severe, and the after effects dragged down his general condition to the point where there is real reason for concern.

Semi-Finals and Final To be Played Tonight

Champs Win First; Wooster and Bethany College Quints Victors; Stubber Quint Cops Two in Row.

Basketball of all styles and descriptions was unfolded before the eyes of approximately 600 local cage enthusiasts last night at the high school when 28 of the 41 teams in the third annual Tri-State district tournament performed in the preliminary and first round contests.

The crowd sat glued to its collective seats until after the clock had tolled the hour of midnight and then thinned out only partially, the remainder of the "ringside" habitués sticking nobly to their posts until 1:45 a. m. when the last of the night's first round teams trotted off the court.

As a general rule, favorites came through with victories in the preliminary and opening round play and will lead until this afternoon. The remainder of the entries completed their first round contests this morning.

The Rossman Corporation, Beaver Falls, Pa., a combination of Geneva and Thiel colleges, outclassed the Youngstown Eagles and then came back in a second encounter to lose to the husky Bethany college quint in one of the outstanding games of the night.

The Browns News of Toronto defeated Struthers Ex-Highs in their first game but bowed before the classy performance of the R. G. McCauslin Florists of Steubenville turned in a lot of classy basketball in winning two during the evening's hostilities. They licked the Fairmont Moose, 28 to 27, in their first appearance, and then turned back the Kreiger Sport Shops, Niles, in the final

May Convert Catcher into Third Sacker

Mack Regards Foxx as Prospect for Infield.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 29.—"If the need ever arises I can make a third baseman of Jimmy Foxx," Connie Mack the grim leader of the Philadelphia Athletics declared in sizing up the A's reserve material this year. Foxx returned to his old post as third string catcher, and has been playing around the hot corner at every opportunity this spring. He likes to play the position.

It may be that eventually Foxx will be converted into a third baseman. As long as Sammy Hale continues to star infield and at bat there is, of course, no chance of Foxx taking the bag away from him, but it appears that Jimmy is going to be groomed for the position and be in readiness to step in should he be needed.

Better at Third.
Kid Gleason is of the opinion that the boy maskman will make a much better third baseman than a first baseman or outfielder. "Foxx has the build for a third sacker," said the Kid. "He's big and husky enough to stop the hot ones with his chest and he has big fine and a good arm. What more does he need?"

"And Jimmy's fast. He can move around home. That's what I'd like to see him made—a third sacker." No experiments will be made with Foxx at present with the chance of rusting his catching form. The hazards of catching are too great to place all the responsibility on just two men. If anything would happen to Cochrane and Perkins, Foxx would be urgently needed behind the bat.

Jimmy has worked in his practice at third base in conjunction with his usual share of the catching duties. With 16 pitchers in camp all of whom have to be warmed up every day, the three maskmen have plenty of work. Jeffrey Emerson, the young catcher from New Jersey also is beginning to assume some of the receiving chores. Emerson's throwing has been one of the mild sensations of the camp. The youngster has an arm that wings the ball around almost as speedily as Jimmy Dykes' rifle arm.

Lacking in Bulk.
Emerson is a trifle small for big league catching, and in a camp where six footers predominate, his stature is not very impressive. But more than mere bulk is militating against Emerson's chances of sticking with the Athletics. Mickey Cochrane, Cy Perkins and the aforementioned Why Emerson is facing a task that is well nigh hopeless.

The whole Mack catching staff is in great shape. Cochrane still is as fast as the first day he reported to the Athletics, and Perkins still is the same old graceful, polished Cy. Perkins will be in shape to go behind the plate without upsetting the Mackian battle front, and in case of necessity, Jimmy Foxx will be in readiness.

It is as impossible for a rookie catcher to break up that triumvirate as it is for a rookie outfielder to beach Cobb, Speaker or Al Simmons. The youngster who is trying to break into either of these departments of the White Elephant machine will have to bid his time for a year.

Finn Runners Resume Pace In Pyle Race

Withdraw From Derby and Then Reconsider.

SANTA ROSA, NEW MEXICO, March 31.—The colors of Finnish America were not hanging at half mast from the C. C. ("cross country") Pyle caravan of callouses as ninety-four runners and walkers moved out of Palma for Santa Rosa, 46 miles away, today.

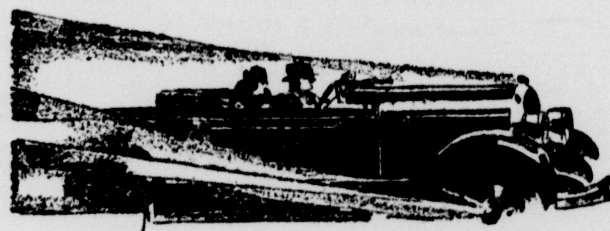

Nestor Erickson, Port Chester, N. Y., and August Fegar, Ashtabula, Ohio, who announced that they would withdraw from the bunion derby because their trainer, Alex Finn, of Los Angeles, was dismissed for insubordination, changed their plans and after being checked out of Moriarty struck out for Palma, 38 miles away.

Night shadows lengthened and the plucky pair plodded on determined to make amends for their "spell of temperment" as the race officials described it.

Stolen Idols

A Romance of the Sea
By Frank L. Packard.

They were getting nearer the shore. He thought he could distinguish figures running and crowding down to the water's edge—the occupants of Verna's boat, of course. He thought of Carter, and the possibility that some other boat with another white officer had got ashore—and shook his head. Little chance there! Carter, even if still alive, was almost certainly too badly hurt to be of any assistance—Parsons had said all the other boats had swamped.

Terror was giving place now to reviving spirits in the boat. The natives were chattering, giving vent to little cries, cries that were still hysterical—but glad cries. They no longer sat in the swish of water at the bottom of the boat. Bob Kingsley, too, resumed his original seat. Kafan, the Malay, crowded in beside him. There was one other chance left—Nanu and the Alita. There was one other chance left—Nanu and the Alita. The schooner, of course, mustn't be brought to the point, not only because of the weather and the time it might take, but because Chen-shu would then know of its existence, and that might very easily be playing into Chen-shu's hands. Who knew what might, or might not, happen in the next few hours? But if he, Bob Kingsley, could get word to Nanu! He couldn't go himself—he couldn't leave Verna with Chen-shu and his cutthroats from now until daylight, or longer even, until the survivors, say, had made their way to Aoru, or whoever was in Aoru came out to them. He couldn't leave her alone for any length of time—long or short!

He bent his head close to the Malay's.

"Were the words of Kafan from the heart a little while ago," he asked in stumbling Malay, "or only from the lips?"

The Malay's eyes met Bob Kingsley's and held there steadily.

"What the Tuan wills, I will do," he answered simply. "Listen, then!" said Bob Kingsley tensely. "There is danger here for me, and for the white woman who went ashore in another boat. The Chinaman who steers this boat, and these others with him, would kill us both. There is great need of help. In that direction—he pointed in the darkness—is Aoru. Beyond Aoru—I do not know how far—there is a schooner lying close to the shore. The schooner is mine. Will you go to the vessel with a message?"

"Yes, Tuan," the man replied instantly.

"Good!" said Bob Kingsley warmly. "Let nothing, then, be known of this; and when you have found the schooner, go aboard and speak to the serang, whose name is Nanu. Say to him that Tuan Bob's orders are that he is to leave the schooner wherever it may be, and that with all his men he is to come swiftly and secretly to me. Tell him that my enemies are the five Chinamen in this boat. Tell him that if harm has meanwhile befallen me, he is to give aid, even at the cost of his life, to the white woman who is now ashore, and whose name is Lyle. Is this understood?"

"It is understood, Tuan."

"We are near the shore now," said Bob Kingsley. "When the boat touches, wait for nothing, but go with all speed."

"If the distance were known, I could set the hour of my return," said Kafan earnestly. "If I am long will the Tuan still be safe?"

"If God wills!" Bob Kingsley answered quietly. "But make ready! See! We are in the surf now!"

The boat was uplifted, crested water curled in over the gunwales. It swept forward in a breathless rush—touched bottom—recoiled—turned sideways—was lifted again, and was again swept onward—and once more its keel touched bottom. Chen-shu was screaming to his oarsmen; a half-score of dark forms on the shore—obviously some of those who had landed from Carter's boat—plunged into the water to grip the boat's sides in an effort to drag it up on the beach. And now for a moment confusion reigned. The boat was unmanageable in the surf; the natives in the water lost their footing in the undertow.

"I go, O Master!" Kafan cried quickly, and sprang out over the boat's side.

Another second, and Bob Kingsley, too, was in the water. It was the one moment in which to reach the shore secure from any interference from Chen-shu and his men. His feet were pulled from beneath him by the undertow. He fell. He clawed his way onward—regained his feet, and ran up on the beach. The boat was being brought under control now; in another minute or so they would have her on the shore. He gave one glance in that direction, and then his eyes swept anxiously around him.

A figure was flying along the beach. It disappeared now in the darkness. Kafan! A little farther back from the shore was a small group of native women and children. Still farther to the right, perhaps a hundred yards away, and drawn up just beyond the water's edge, was another boat. Carter's boat, of course! And beside this boat, sitting alone on the beach, he made out a woman's form. A white woman from her dress. There had been only one white woman on the Monotah! He felt the blood pound suddenly, fiercely, in his veins.

He turned and ran at top speed in her direction.

CHAPTER 25.

Verna rose in a startled way to her feet as Bob Kingsley reached her side. Her face, he could see even in the darkness, was very white, very drawn, almost haggard. A strange confusion seemed to overtake her for an instant—only to be instantly vanquished the next. The little figure stiffened, her hands at her sides clenched tightly. She retreated a step from him before he could speak.

"I had thought you dead out there—that there were no more boats," she said in a dull voice. "And I was glad—because—because—God pardon me, it was the easiest way for me. You may have saved my life, but that does not condone, and never will condone, my brother's cowardly murder at your hand. If you had died out there, if in saving my life it had cost you yours, I think in time I would have come to have lost some of my hatred and my loving for you. As it is, I loathe you the more now for the intolerable position in which you have placed me. I had rather you had not saved my life! Can you understand that? But if you thought, or now think, because you placed me in that boat, that I would allow you to escape the consequences of what you have done, you are miserably wrong."

Bob Kingsley's eyes had left the girl's face to fix intently on the spot along the beach where Chen-shu's boat was being pulled up now on the shore. There was movement there, a running to and fro, a gathering together in groups of the survivors from both boats. But it was too dark and the distance too great to pick out Chen-shu or any of his men from amongst the other natives. He answered her now, his eyes still holding warily along the beach.

"I have already told you," he said a little unsteadily, "that I had nothing to do with your brother's death, and that—"

"I came here, away from the others, to be alone for a little while," she interrupted uncompromisingly. "Will you go back to them, or shall I?"

There was still no move being made by Chen-shu and his four followers. Bob Kingsley noted now that the shore was thickly wooded some four or five hundred yards back from the beach, and for an instant he considered the advisability of seeking refuge there—then he discarded the idea. It was too far to go, and anyway it wasn't safe. One was much too easily come upon from all directions amongst the trees. He must keep open ground between himself and the Chinamen—and still find some sort of protection. His eyes played speculatively for a moment on the boat beside him. Yes! Why not? It would serve as well as anything he could hope for!

"Neither, Miss Lyle," he said—and now his voice was composed and quiet. "It is not safe there for either of us. I am afraid you will have to stay here with me."

Without answer she took a step past him.

He caught her arm quickly and drew her back. She tried to break away from him, and, as he held her the more tightly she stamped her foot furiously.

"Oh, if I were a man, if I had the strength," she cried.

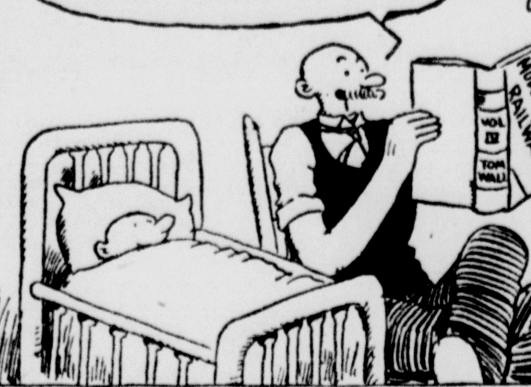

"I—"
